VOL. XXII.

THE SILVER BILL

WILL BE TO THE FRONT AGAIN THIS WEEK.

SOME REPUBLICANS FAVOR IT Because They See a Chance to Make Capital Out of the Present Democratic Situation-In Congress This Week.

WASHINGTON, February 15 .- [Special.]-The republicans caucus tomorrow night on the subject of silver.

They are badly divided.

There are twenty-four republicans who favor the passage of the senate free coinage

The others oppose it.

Last night, however, there was a conference between some of the leaders, and there is a plan on foot to have tomorrow night's caucus decide to pass a bill for the free coinage of the product of American mines. The advocates of this plan claim that it will increase the currency very little above what it now is, while the republican party will get the credit throughout the west for having given the country free coinage.

It is also claimed that President Harrison will sign such a bill, and that then the silver question will be out of politics, and the west will be republican again in the next presidential election.

But there will be a fight over the adoption of such a plan. Many republicans are op-posed to the passage of any sort of a financial bill now. They claim the best politics for them is to leave the question open, and allow the breach in the democratic party on this question to widen. The men who be-lieve this way will attempt to prevent the coinage committee reporting at all. However, the prevailing opinion tonight is that the silver bill will be reported in some shape by Wednesday, for, even with a report, if the republican caucus decides not to pass a bill this session, it will not be difficult ever, the free coinage members of both parties are prepared to fight vigorously this week. might remain silent till Wednesday, but on that day it is quite certain the heavy firing ace and the fight will be on in

A Brass Proposition.

The republicans of the election committee proposed to Judge Crisp a few days ago that if the democrats would consent to a vote on the two pending contested election cases, they would defer action till the last day of the session. It was the evident desire of the republicans to simply give their two contestants two years' salary each.

Judge Crisp indignantly rejected the proposition, and announced emphatically that if the republicans should attempt to unseat any more democrats they would have to do it with a quorum of their own men, that he would fight it to the last hour of the last day of the

The two republican contestants who want $10,000 each are Goodrich, of Florida, who contested the seat of Colonel Bullock, and McGinnis, who contested Mr. Alderson's seat.
The republicans, in view of Judge Crisp's ejection of their proposition, have decided to bandon the two cases. They dare not attempt any outrages at this session.

Georgians Who Will Retire. WASHINGTON, February 15.—[Special.]—On the 4th of March, six of the best men who ever filled seats in congress will retire to private life. They are Georgians. They leave congress with reputations for industry, determination and ability which will not soon be for-

Of these six Mr. Clements is the oldest in point of service. On the 4th day of March he will have concluded a term of ten years in congress. Most of his service was on the committee on appropriations under Mr. Randall as chairman, and it will be difficult to fill his lace on this committee in the next congress. Mr. Clements will return to Rome where he will practice law. Mr. Candler first came to the forty-eighth congress, and on the 4th of March will have concluded his eighth year in Washington. He will return to Gainesville, where he will resume his business as a contractor and builder, devoting his time largely to railroad building. Mr. Candler leaves a good record. While he seldom made a speech, he is one whose advice has been much sought, and his work in committees has been effective. It was he who killed the Blair bill in committee last congress, and thus prevented the passage of a measure which would have caused much annoyance and trouble throughout the south. The rerement of Mr. Candler is a loss to the state of Georgia. Major Barnes, of Augusta, is the next oldest man in point of service and he is, perhaps, next to Mr. Candler, the wealthiest man in the delegation. Major Barnes has been here six years, and after the 4th of March he will return to Augusta to look after his large interests there. He leaves a record as an earnest and practical worker and eloquent lawyer. Indeed, he is one of the best orators in the dele-

Messrs, Carlton, Grimes and Stewart are of the same age in point of service. Each of them concludes his fourth year of congressional life on the 4th of March. They leave records for earnest workers and good members and indeed, all three have been remarkably cessful in local work for their districts.

Mr. Carlton will still continue to make Athens his home and will again open his law office there. He will, however, devote a large portion of his time to business interests here. He president of the Southern Investment Company which is doing a very large and lucrative business, and Mr. Carlton is on the road to bemillionaire, which is a long ways

e Progress Made in Pushing Through the Appropriation Bills. WASHINGTON, February 15.—The energy splayed by congress during the past week action upon the general appropriation bills, and had the result of placing these measures in a state of forwardness that com-pares favorably with the record of the preceding congress in the short mion. Four appropriation bills, the District of Columbia, the military academy, the pension and the naval, have passed both houses and will go to the final conference stage as soon as the necessary order can be made by the house of representatives. The diplomatic and consular appropriation bill has been reported to the senate and the legislature, executive and in-appropriation bill has been reported to the senate and the legislature, executive and judicial appropriation bill and "sundry civil" bill are awaiting the action of the senate committee on appropriations.

The Indian appropriation bill is under consideration by the house, and two appropriation bills, the postoffice and the agricultural, are on the calendar, thus leaving only one of the thirteen regular appropriation bills, the gentral designation of the property of the postoffice and by the thirteen regular appropriation bills, the geral deficiency, to be yet prepared by committee and reported to the house.

In the Senate.

In the Senate.

The copyright bill is the unfinished business before the senate. Whether its consideration will be resumed tomorrow, however, depends upon the majority's estimate of the amount of time that will be required to reach the point of final action.

Senator Hale has stated his intention to call up the diplomatic expressions.

Senator Hale has stated his intention to call up the diplomatic appropriation bill tomorrow, but as the friends of the copyright bill are confident that the measure is in such shape that it cannot consume much more time, it will probably be brought to a final vote before the diplomatic bill is taken up.

Sundry civil and legislative appropriation bills are to be reported some time during the week, and will be pressed at once upon the senate's consideration. Conference reports on the other and further advanced appropriation bills will also be submitted for action.

bills will also be submitted for action.

The republican caucus list of measures selected for consideration in the intervals between the discussion of appropriation bills is as follows: Indian depradations bill, Nicaragua canal bill, pure food and Conger lard bills, army reorganization bill, interstate commerce bill, land court bill, bankruptcy bill, revenue marine bill and and Pacific railroad funding bill. How far in this programme the senate may proceed will depend on the amount of time occupied by the appropriation bills, but it is the caucus determination that none of the measures named on the list shall be permitted to remain under consideration for an unreasonable length of time, and as a matter of invertible consideration. unreasonable length of time, and as a matter of justice to the succeeding features of the order any bill will be laid aside that provokes order any bill will be laid aside that provokes very much debate.

In the house it is confidently expected by the party leaders that by the end of this week the general deficiency bill will be the only one of the regular annual bills unacted on. It is the intention to finish consideration of the Indian bill tomorrow, and it has been arranged that the postoffice and agricultural appropriation bills shall follow the Indian bill in the order named.

THE SHIPPING BILL.

THE SHIPPING BILL.

The shipping bill, which has for about two weeks remained pending in the house as unfinished business, will then be again brought up, and its friends propose to secure final action on it before the end of the week. The committee which reported the bill is prepared, if necessary, to take the senate bill, unamended, as the measure to become a law, but greatly prefer that there shall be incorporated in the senate bill the mail and naval reserve clauses of the house measure.

Mr. Thompson, of Ohio, says he intends to call up, during the week, the recommendation of impeachment decided upon by the judiciary committee in the case of Judge Boarman, of Louislana, but will not press this matter if it be likely to seriously delay appropriation bills or the shipping bill.

The silver question still remains the most absorbing topic of discussion among the members of the house, and there is constant fear on the part of the conservative members that it may, at some unexpected time, be sprung on the house in an unlooked for shape. The belief has, however, now become quite general and strong that no silver bill can be taken up in advance of the report from the coinage cammittee.

The silver men are confident that the bill will be reported to the house be-fore the end of the week, and the republican caucus, which has been called for tomorrow night, have some influence on the course to be pursued in regard to this measure by the majority.

PIERRE, S. D., February 15.—It has come to light that an understanding has virtually been reached between the democrats and the independents, whereby they expect to unite and elect State Senator Kyle as Judge Moody's successor in the United States senate, not later probably than Wednesday.

Tripp has released the democratic caucus and some of his strongest workers voted for Kyle yesterday.

BRICE'S BAILROAD DEALS. Chicago Ontlet for the East Tenn

Virginia and Georgia. CHATTANOGA, Tenn., February 15 .- [Special.]-Senator Calvin S. Brice and party capitalists arrived in Chattanooga over the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia last night. The party includes several leading railroad men of the north. Senator Brice stated to your correspondent that he had been over the Louisville, New Albany and Chicago railway recently with the object of securing control of it. This trip over the southern railway is one of inspection for the party. Trade with South America is considered, and to perfect arrangements of a through line out of Chicago to the southern coast is what the party is after. In connection with this it is stated that Brice has bought the unsold mortgage bonds of the road, amounting to $1,855,000, for which he paid $1,500,000; that this sum is to be used in improving the physical condition of the road, and that it is to be used as a Chicago line for the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia via New Albany, and of the Queen and Crescent via Cincinnati and Indianapolis

The cost to one of the companies here, of changing all its mines to conform to the law, is estimated at $500,000. The total length of all the shafts, slopes, manways, headings, etc., of this one company is near 100 miles, and all will have to be enlarged to comply with this bill. The mines of this district have not been opened with a view to the comfort of the miners, but there have been very few accidents and none with the great loss of life so often occurring in Pennsylvania.

of John F. Dunn-Call's Friends Watching Events.

St. Augustine, Fla., February 15 .- [Spe cial.]—A great deal of mystery is involved in the movements of some of the leading anti-Call men this week.

Robert F. Rogers, president of the State Farmers' Alliance, who is working to throw the influence of that organization in favor of John F. Dunn for United States senator, was in Washington last week in attendance upon the meeting of the national legislative council of the Farmers' Alliance, and returned to Colonel Wright states that labor cost after all the two traveled westward in company as far as Tallahassee and in close conference. There they were joined by E. J. Triav, the gevernor's private secretary, who is taking a very active part in the tight against Call. When the train passed River Junction these three were in close conference and continued so for several hours afterward. Definite information is lacking as to W. D. Chipley's movements, but it is alleged that he came eastward and met the trio at some point west of River Junction and thence traveled westward with them, the conference continuing. Word comes from Pensacola that the four traveled westward beyond Pensacola, presumably either to Mobile or New Orleans, as it was considered a little dangerous for these four to be seen together at any point within the bounds of the state.

COULDN'T CATCH HARVEY. S, S. Harvey, of Escambia county, who is at present occupied in Jacksonville in alliance exchange matters, was invited to join the party on its westward pilgrimage, but positively declined. Harvey is one of Dunn's active workers, having been engaged in promoting his election as senator for the past three or four months. He is reported to have taken a firm stand against the holding of these conferences, declaring that it was one of the most foolish and dangerous steps which the opposition to Call could possibly take. At any rate, he did not join the party, and within the past fortyeight hours has been heard to say that he was very glad he didn't; that he felt sure that this latest combination would not only injure Dunn's candidacy, but himself (Harvey) personally.

A. S. Mann, of Hernando, was also asked to make this pilgrimage beyond the borders of the state to confer against Call, but he, too, declined on the ground that his business would not permit his absence for so long a period. It surmised, however, that he, also, was too wily a politician to be caught in this

He is an active worker against Call, but he evidently prefers to pursue a different policy from the one which is likely to grow out of this conference. Speculation is rife as what will result from this half-secret movement, but in a general way it is supposed that it is mapping out a plan of champaign and will bring the batteries of the opposition to bear directly on Call in the next few days, so as to have the battle in full progress when the legislature opens in early April.

With reference to this conference beyond the western borders of the state, it is worthy to mention that Rogers, upon his arrival in Jacksonville last Monday night, confidently expected that Dunn would meet him here, and was somewhat surprised when he found that the latter did not show up. To pursue inthat the latter did not show up. To passed we structions he took the eastward train, as above related, and met Dunn at Baldwin. It is presumed that this movement on the part of Dunn was to avoid any suspicion that might be his baing in Jacksonville and being attach to his being in Jacksonville and being seen in company with Rogers Monday night. COUNTING VOTES AGAINST THEM.

Within the past few days it has been learned upon good authority that there are some three or four legislators who are counted upon by the opposition as sure to vote against Call, but who are altogether likely to be found in the The solid opposition to the senator probably numbers thirty-three legislators, and it is possible that there may be forty; but the leaders of the opposition claim nearly fifty. They concede a majority to Call, but insist that a caucus nomination will be necessary before any man can be elected, and, as is well known, it will require sixty-six votes to secure such a nomination. Call's friends feel confident of their ability to control that number of votes in the end, and the opposition is quite as confident bett it cannot be done.

STEEL AND STEEL RAILS. Commissioner Wright's Report Sent in By

Washington, February 15.—The president has transmitted to congress the report of Carroll D. Wright, commissioner of labor, on the cost of the production of steel and steel rails. The inquiry was directed by the act establishing a department with the view to establishing a department with the view to ascertain the cost of producing articles dutiable in the United States in the leading countries where such articles are produced, by the units of production, in order to show the difference in the cost of production between this country and Europe, and the possible bearing of these differences upon the tariff rates.

The report covers three features, the first relating to the cost of production of the articles.

relating to the cost of production of the articles selected; the second, relative to rates, wages, time, earnings and efficiency of labor employed, and the third relating to the cost of living and the total earnings and expenditures of the mean employed.

of the men employed.

Colonel Wright was able to obtain the facts from 618 establishments, manufacturing various kinds of iron and steel, or products for the purpose of this report. Colonel Wright has divided the United States into two districts, "northern" and "southern."

The comparison of cost of materials used in the northern and the southern districts of the

the northern and the southern districts of the United States shows a difference in favor of the south in the cost of ore and of coal to be very great, although the difference, so far as ore is concerned, its partially offset by the comparatively higher per cent of iron in the northern district. The ore used in the northern district costs per ton an average of $4.40; cinder scrap, etc., $2.63; limestone, 79.8 cents; coke, 33.014, and coal, $2.695.

The cost in the southern district for ore is the northern and the southern districts of the The cost in the southern district for ore is

The cost in the southern district for ore is $1.513; cinder scrap, etc., $1.31; limestone, 70.01 cents; coke, $3.984, and coal, $1.566.

The report shows the total cost of one ton of pig iron from the mining of materials to the finished product in thirteen establishments, seven in the northern district, five in the southern, and one in Great Britain. In the northern district

The direct cost of labor in the production of Bessemer iron ranges from $3.70 to $9.44; for officials and clerks from 17½ cents to 51 cents; supplies, repairs and taxes from $1.69 to $5.62; transportation to point where used from $1.69 to $5.62; transportation to point where used from $1.69 to $5.63.

The totals therefore range from $13.87 per

The difference between the foregoing and the cost as charged by the blast furnace, 21 cents to $2.07; total, therefore, ranged from $9.16 per ton to $10.61, in one establishment in Great Britain. The total cost of these elements per ton is $10.21.

Great Britain. The total cost of these elements per ton is $10.21.

The table shows the results of the inquiry as to the cost of producing steel rails in thirteen establishments, two of them being in the United States, eight on the continent of Europe and three in Great Britain.

In the United States, the net cost of materials was $21.10, at one establishment, and $25.11 at the other. The cost of labor was $1.54 and $1.38. The total cost at one, $24.79, and $27.68 at the other.

Colonel Wright states that labor cost in one ton steel rail, speaking of labor cost after all materials had been assembled and ready to be subjected to proper manipulation for the production of rails, should be less per ton relatively in this country than in Great Britain or the continent of Europe, because American producers of rails dispense with at least one expensive process still adhered to by many foreign producers, and materials used in the United States are purer than those used in most other countries. Hence the quantity of ore required for the production of a ton of rails is less in this country than in many places abroad, and the labor required to handle the materials in a way to produce a ton, is less. This is shown by the quantities of ore used in different establishments. In an establishment given in the northern district of the United States, 4,137 pounds of iron ore were necessary for the production of one ton of standard rails, while in an establishment in Great Britain 5,127 pounds of iron ore were necessary for the production of one ton of practically the same kind of rails, while on the continent of Europe 5,701 pounds of ore were necessary for the production of one ton of reactically the same kind of rails, while on the continent of Europe 5,701 pounds of ore were necessary for the production of one ton of or atils. These, Colonel kind of rails, while on the continent of Europe 5,701 pounds of ore were necessary for the pro-duction of one ton of rails. These, Colonel Wright says, are far more indicative of the true conditions surrounding the production of rails in the respective countries than any of the others given.

The entire direct labor cost of production in these three establishments was $11.50.

The entire direct labor cost of production in these three establishments was $11.59 for the United States, $7.81 for Great Britain and $8.10 for the continent of Europe, showing a difference as against the United States of $3.78 in favor of Great Britain, and $3.49 in favor of the continent of Europe.

In speaking of the transportation of steel rails, Colonel Wright says that in some cases the heavy freight charge for transporting iron and steel rails benefits the American manufacturers; in others, it places them at a serious disadvantage at ports where there is water competition with European manufactures. As an illustration of the practical working of the freight rates with reference to the steel rails, the report quotes the statement of a manager of one of the largest steel companies in the United States. He said the difference in the cost of production of steel rails in Chicago, for instance, and in England, would not exceed $3.50 or $4 per ton, and that the freight rate, $5 per ton, from Chicago to New York, offered a large protection to his company.

As to the time workmen are employed, the

As to the time workmen are employed, the As to the time workmen are employed, the report gives examples of dally averages in this country and in Europe in pig iron works. The average dally earnings of workmen in the northern district of the United States varies from $1.47 to $2.03, in the southern section from $1.22 to $1.34, on the continent of Europe from 64 cents to 70 cents, and in Great Britain from 62 cents to $7 cents. In Great Britain from 62 cents to $7 cents.

the continent of Europe from 64 cents to 70 cents, and in Great Britain from 62 cents to 67 cents. In Great Britain and on the continent of Europe, however, the workmen are employed only about three months in the year. As to the efficiency of labor Colonel Wright says that a comparison of the figures shows that in pig iron, in the northern district of the United States, forty-three of the forty-five establishments have an efficiency of .08 of a ton or more, one ranging as high as .16, and under .17; thirty-four being concentrated in four groups that began with .08 and end under .12; while in the southern district of the United States fourteen of the twenty-one have an efficiency under .08, and of seven above this figure five are under .10. In the northern district for those of .08 and above the average earnings per man per hour range from .14 1-10 to .18 1-10; increasing quite generally with the increase of efficiency, while those below .08 have earnings from .11 1-10 to .12 8-10. In Great Britian three establishments are given, two of which have high efficiency, both heigh efficiency to the house and change her clothes and get dinner. I had about half unhitched the horse when I heard two pistol shots in the house and heard mother scream. Just after the shots, about half a minute later, father came to the door with a Winchester rifle. When I saw father coming with the increase of efficiency, while the efficiency while in the southern district for those of .08 and above the average earnings per man per hour range from .14 1-10 to .18 1-10; increasing quite generally with the increase of efficiency, while the efficiency while in the southern district for those of .08 and above the average earnings per man per hour later the shots, about half a minute later, father came to the door with a Winchester rifle. When I saw no one else about the house except those I have mentioned.

" ments are given, two of which have high efficiency, both being between .12 and .14 tons, and accompanied by earnings of .09 and .10, while the remaining one with an efficiency between .07 and .08 tons, has earnings of but .05 8-10. The five establishments for the continent of Europe have an efficiency rather lower than the northern district of the United States, agreeing more nearly to the southern. nearly to the southern.

No connection between the efficiency and earnings is traceable in them.

The average earnings per hour for workmen ranges in the northern district from 9 cents to 18 cents; in the southern district from 11 cents to 13 cents; in Europe from 4 cents to 5 cents, and in Great Britain from 5 cents to 10 cents per hour.

THE SNYDER TRAGEDY.

A GRAPHIC DESCRIPTION OF THAT AWFUL SCENE

AS GIVEN BY MRS. SNYDER'S SONS. The Glaring Atrocity of the Crime Revealed. The Poor Woman's Frightful Experience With a Monster

Rome, Ga., February 15 .- [Special.]-It has been but a few weeks since the people of Georgia were shocked by the news of the killing of Mrs. Ida Snyder, by her husband, at San Marcos, Tex. Mrs. Snyder was well known, not only to the people of Rome, where she grew to womanhood in the home of her father, the late Judge John W. H. Underwood, but had many friends in Augusta and Atlanta, where, as a young lady, she had often A One Hundred Thousand Dollar Fire in

For several years, she sang in the choirs of the Presbyterian and Baptist churches, at Rome, and her voice was considered the finest soprano in the place. For some time she taught in the public schools of that city and had a very wide acquaintanceship there and elsewhere.

Heretofore but meagre details of the terrible tragedy have reached the general public. The testimony of Mrs. Snyder's sons before the coroner's jury at San Marcos, on the day after her death, tells with graphic and touching simplicity the story of that awful scene. Below is given that portion of the testimony which is most pertinent. It makes the record, the sworn record, of one of the most atrocious murders ever committed in the south.

George Snyder's Testimony. The first witness was George Henry Snyder, a boy of fifteen, whose evidence was given as follows:

"Yesterday, Sunday, my mother went to church and father remained at home. My mother returned about 1 o'clock. My father mother returned about 1 o'clock. My father was at home when she returned. Father and I had been quarreling just before mother returned, and I reported to mother what had taken place between father and myself. Father was present at the time. He said I had been giving him some of my impertinence, and he made me hush. My mother replied that he need make no excuse, for he had acted that way before in her presence. I remarked to father that that was not the last of this thing. It would not blow over as soon as he thought, and that I intended to report his conduct to three men. He replied: "You will, will you?" and reached back as if to draw his pistol. We were all in mother's room, which is situated on the left hand side as you enter from the front of the building. As he reached, as if to draw his pistol, I ran out of the front into the hall and around the stairway, and entered mother's room from the back door. As I passed the stairway I head a nistel shot. Three Thousand Telegrams Received by the Sherman Family.

NEW YORK, February 15.—[Special.]—There was a crowd of people passing to and fro in front of General Sherman's house from early morn till late tonight. There was nothing much to see but long crapestreamers fluttering from the door bell, and once in a while the face of some of the family or friend within, as they glanced through the window. Callers at the house were too many to be counted almost, the house were too many to be counted almost, but a few went inside, the majority merely leaving their cards. In the afternoon the two Misses Sherman went out for a short drive, but they were the only ones in the house who left for any length of time during the day. Generals Slocum, Howard and Butterfield spent the day in arranging the funeral but the details were not settled at nightfall.

A meeting of the board of officers of the New York state commandery of the military order of the Loyal Legion was held at the residence of General Wagner Swayne this morning. The offer of a guard of honor, consisting of comrades of the commandery, to watch over the remains of the dead, was sent the family, and a formal meeting of the commandery was ordered to take place at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, to take action on the general's death. About 3,000 telegrams have been received at the house since the general's

A FORTUNE IN FLAMES.

Greenville, Miss.
GREENVILLE, Miss., February 15.-[Special.)—At 1 o'clock this morning a fire broke out in the large dry goods house of S. Feld & Co., the stock of goods of which was being sold for account of the First National bank of this city. The conflagration was one of the largest that has visited this city for years. Five stores and their entire contents were entirely consumed in two hours. The total value will approximate $100,000. ONE HOUR BEFORE RELIEF.

Owing to the terrible condition of the streets, which prevented the fire department from getting the engine to the scene, full forty minutes were consumed in getting it two blocks, drawn by men and horses knee deep in mud and slush, and from the time the first alarm was sounded, one long hour had passed before the slush, and from the time the first alarm was sounded, one long hour had passed before the hose were playing a stream on the burning buildings.

THE WORK OF THE FLAMES.

The flames by this time had gutted the large tow-story building, in which it had originated, and had caught in the millinery store of T. H. Hayor, on the west side, and the large dry goods house of J. Ehrlich, only one-story. The crumbling walls of the Currier building toppled over and crushed in the roof.

When fairly at work the fire department done splendid work, and kept the flames from spreading west and arresting its progress in that direction entirely. By this time the fire on the other side had reached the dry goods house of Leyser & Co., and was fast being consumed. In the meantime the bucket brigade had succeeded in keeping the flames from the roof of the store of Head & Co., grocers. The hose then played a fine stream on the fire in the store of Leyser & Co., and had succeeded, it was thought, in preventing a further spread. By this time the roof of the grocery store of Head & Co., had ignited, and was about to burst out in a blaze, when the supply of water gave out and no more could be obtained, as the engine could not be moved any further through the street. In twenty minutes the $15,000 stock of groceries was a burning mass. Here the flames came in contact with the heavy brick wall of a new two-story building which stood on the corner, and without the aid of water the flames were arrested.

DAVITT CEITICIZES PARNELL

But the People Present Cheer the Old DUBLIN, February 25.—Michael Davitt addressing a meeting at Mount Rath, Queen's county, today speaking on a resolution expressing confidence in Gladstone, denounced the land purchase bill, declaring that only an Irish parliament could adequately deal with the question. Neither Parnell nor any of his followers, he said, would be returned at the general election, and the longer the controversy lasted, the more determined the Irish people would become in their opposition to Parnell. Mr. Parnell's followers, he added, would regret the day they took Parnell's advice. The mention of Parnell's name was received with cheers, which caused so much disorder that the police had to intervene, and the meeting dispersed in confusion. Although It Will Not Open Until Next No vember—The Success Which Augusta Has Met in That Line.

AUGUSTA, Ga., February 15 .- [Special.]-Although Augusta's exposition dates are as yet far off—November 2d to November 28th tive work is being done towards insuring it

The first exposition was held in 1888 and now Augusta thinks the time is seasonable for another effort of the kind. While the first one was in every respect a success, the aim is to make the approaching event one of still greater comprehensiveness, scope and

The buildings are charmingly adapted for the purpose. They face Druid avenue, and adjoin the park of that name. In the belt of tall soughing pines, off to the right, was held, last spring, Georgia's first encampment of the state's troops and the various reports spoke flatteringly of the site, both as to healthfulness and conve to the city. The latter advantage hardly commends an encampment, however desirab it may be in other public gatherings. The exposition grounds embrace eighty acres and include a racing course second t none in the country, according racing men their flyers over its elastic length.

The main exposition building is over 960 feet long and contains 200,000 square feet. It is fitted with galleries, and the cupola i reached by elevators, and from the top a magnificent view of the surrounding valley is Among the board of directors are some o Augusta's most enterprising business men, and at their head is Hon. Patrick Walsh. The work of preparing for and bringing to satisfactory consummation the task under-taken, is certainly in good hands. The personnel is much the same as that of the carnival

A NEW ERA FOR AUGUSTA. The last exposition seems to have marked a new era for Augusta. New enterprises have sprung up. New leaders have appeared in her midst. Three new railroads have been mapped out, and are now being built, and a feeling has developed that Augusta must take a front place in the galaxy of southern cities.

Among the projects now being agitated some of them already taking shape or under course of construction, is a new clubhouse to cost $50,000, a bleachery to be capitalized at $100,000, an apartment house, fertilizer works, $200,000; Tidewater Oil Company's depot of supply, shoe manufactory, $25,000; Union Abatoir and tankage concern, $20,000.

Three land companies represent an expen diture of nearly $1,000,000, and improvem are now being made on the properties. The evidence is that the city will shortly be paved with asphalt or belgian block, or probably by using both-the blocks for the business streets and the asphalt for the residence streets. ELECTRICITY WILL BLAZE FORTH.

Augusta will also be lighted by electricity. The city will erect its own dynamos on canal and will have the cheapest lights of any city in the south as the power will cost noth-ing. The soubrequet "Electric City" has Augusta through general and manifold uses already made of this agency. Over twenty miles of electric car are now operated, and more are now in course of construction. Take the few features mentioned above and bear in mind that the city was never a more active whole sale mart than at present; that new blood and new money are daily going into manuenterprises, and understood that Augusta feels strong in the qualities that go to make an exposition successful and redound the greatest returns to community and section.

The volume of trade at Augusta for the year ending last December footed up the hand total of $69,950,000

KNOCKED OFF THE TRACK.

Horace Goodwin and Jackson Young, while drunk and walking locked arms on the Cenwere struck by the switch engine out on Washington street at the intersection of Gwynne, and thrown a good distance off, and were seriously injured. Young was profoundly shocked by the severe blow received from th pilot, and it is apprehended he was internally injured. Goodwin escaped with only sligh bruises. There are doubts of Young's recovery. The accident is entirely the fault of the ne groes, who staggered against the engine just as it approached them.

The Gold-Brick Swindler.

The first warrant issued for William Harper, the bunco man, who played the goldbug fake off on Messrs. Weathersbee and Kennedy, of Williston, S. A DESERVED COMPLIMENT.

Editor Remsen Crawford in the Lectur Field.

ATHENS, Ga., February 15.—[Special.]—Editor Remsen Crawford, of The Athens Banner, is the recipient of a very deserved compliment in the shape of an invitation to deliver a lecture before the Southern Educational Association at its next meeting. The association meets in Chattanooga next July, and a programme of great interest will be arranged. Prominent lecturers from all over the south will be present, and it is a high compliment paid to an able young man in the selection of Editor Crawford among the lecturers.

His subject will be "Southern Literature and the Effect of Schools Upon It." This subject of great interest and instruction will doubtless be handled with great ability.

lively times last night in Tybee among the negroes.

Bill Williams is a negro "spotter" for the Macon police, and for that reason is held in much disfavor among the negroes. Last night a party of ten negroes broke down the door of Williams's house, entered and attacked him. They beat him unmercifully, and hel received several severe wounds on the head and face from the buttend of pistols. In fact, he was nearly beaten into insensibility. City Physician O'Daniel dressed his injuries. Three of Williams's assailants, Ben Jackson, John Jenkins and Charlie Craft were arrested.

INCIDENT NO. 2.

A negro man escorted two colored girls home by request, as they said they were afraid to go home by themselves. When their beau was in the act of telling them goodbye, he was set upon by two unknown negrees, and beaten unmeritully. It is thought that the assailants were jealous lovers of the two colored damagle.

INCIDENT NO. 3. A restuarant in Tybee was invaded by negroes with sacks, who proceeded to steal all the food, cooked and raw, that could be found, and putting it in the sacks, departed.

The affair caused some excitement. Must Stay in Jail.

THE PURPOSE OF HIS VISIT UNDER

WAYCROSS, Ga., February 15 .- [Special.]-

There is a genuine sensation in railway circles here which partakes of the supernatural. It s a ghost story with some foundation in fact The gentlemen who run the cannon ball train from Waycross to Albany have see strange sights lately and are somewhat un settled, as far as their nerves are concerned The "ghost" was seen for the first time about ago, and is described as being in the form of a woman, rather tall and slender and arrayed in snowy white. It stands about two miles this side of Waresboro, near the railroad track, and is apparently looking for somelone on the train. The engineer says that the woman's countenance is ghastly, and she has een seen to stand on the track, waving he arms as if to signal the flying train.

On one occasion loud screams were heard a the engine dashed by the white figure-piero ing shrieks that not even the roar and rattle of the wheels could drown, and which will live long in the memory of the men who heard

On another occasion the woman remained on the track until the engine was within fifty vards of her; then, with a wild cry she fled from the track and disappeared in the gloomy woods. Conductor Pierson did not believe the stor when it was first related by his engineer, an in order to see the strange sight for himself, got in a position to observe it as the train passed one night recently. He was so thor oughly convinced that he did not get his nerves quiet till he passed Tifton, about sixty miles beyond; and he may ask the compan for another run, where there are no midnigh hobgoblins or white-robed ghosts.

One theory is that the apparition is nothing more than a crazy woman, though parties living ear Waresboro say there is none such in that neighborhood. The theory, however, is a plausible one and efforts will be made to solve the mystery.

ALLIANCE RESOLUTIONS. Decatur Suballiance Acts.

Decatur Suballiance Acts.

The following has been received for publication from Decatur:
Resolved, That this suballiance does unqualifiedly condemn the recent so-called alliance meeting held without authority and in secret; at the governor's mansion by a few of our bretheren and non-eligible outsiders as unloyal and untrue to the great principles of our brotherhood and unity of our order. We view this secret caucus as not only ill-advised and without the sanction or knowledge of anybody authorized or impowered to call it, but mischlevous and dangerous; its sole purpose being, as it must appear to all, to produce division and discord in our ranks.

We, therefore, as true alliancemen utterly repudlate the whole proceeding as boding evil and only evil to our order.

Resolved further, That we sound the alarm, "Enemies within the camp," and call upon Presibent Livingston to proceed promptly as far as authorized by the constitution to deal with our secretary, Brother Burk, for conduct unbecoming an allianceman in calling this midnight secret conclave and using the official letter heads of the president without consulting him or any other alliance official as to its propriety.

Resolved further, That we have all confidence in our state official organ, The Southern Alliance Farmer, and deem our order peculiarly fortunate in having Harry Brown and Larry Gant, two of the most brilliant writers and journalists and solid alliancemen is the state, as its editors. We congratulate the state alliance upon the fact that our state official organ, The Southern Alliance, finance and loyalty to our principles and order. Long may it live to battle against all enemies for the rights of the people.

Passed by a unanimous vote of Decatur alliance, with the request that THE Construction and The Southern Alliance Farmer publish.

The Quitman County Alliance.

At a meeting of Quitman County Alliance, held February 10, 1891, the following resolutions by Brother H. L. Balkcom was read and adopted:

Resolved, That we condemn with all the power within us that self-constituted committee that met at the capitol the 6th instant, and published resolutions condemning our state organ and its editors, and we beg to remind them that we have an executive committee to overlook our interest in this respect, and we recognize said committee as the only source from which such complaint should come; and we piedge our support to The Southern Alliance Farmer so long as it is recognized by proper authority as our state organ.

Resolved, 2d, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to The Southern Alliance Farmer, The Constitution and Liberal Enterprise.

GOULD IN SAVANNAH.

The Belief Obtains That He Will Throw th

Bulk of His Freight Toward Norfolk Rather Than Savannah.

SAVANNAH, Ga., February 15 .- [Special.]-The farmers and Jay Gould, the extremist ooth here in one week, and from the pres of each Savannah is hoping to derive a benefit Gould left lots of vague rumors; the farmer left lots of business orders and lots of newly made friends. So far the farmers have proved the best source of profit. Their visit turned loose a pile of cash and increased, ome extent, the city's trade. Gould, so far as has been learned, with all his millions, die not drop even a nickle by the wayside during those eighteen hours he passed here. His isit raised a speedy crop of expectations, only that and nothing more.

There are many doubtless who believe that i the only harvest in store for Savannah as a result of Gould's project of consolidation. A man who is well up in railroad circles, and who two days before the publication of the plans of the Gould syndicate outlined it to THE CON-STITUTION'S correspondent, said today that everything pointed more to the bulk of western and southwestern traffic being thrown over the Richmond and Danville branch of the terminal system to Norfolk, than to its coming via the Central to Savannah.

"The volume of freight coming here be incidentally increased," said he, but it is much to be doubted if it is this way. They want to get the benefit of the long haul and the interests of any city are nothing to them when placed alongside of their own financial interests. As Mr. Gould stated when here, they came south on busi-ness, not through sentiment, and the town that ses its hopes on the belief that they are going to do something merely to advance its interests, is going to be rudely awakened. "It looks to me, and to many others," he continued, "as if the Georgia Central is hereafter going to be a sort of a side show, a secondary branch of a great system. Its policy hereafter, instead of being controlled here will be dictated from New York, and its officers will be merely the servants of a few unscruputo merely the servants of a few unscript-lous men 1,000 miles away, who do not care whatever for Georgia or Savannah except as their purses may be affected. It would have been better in the end if the control of the road had been kept at home."

There are others, though, who profess to see a great and sudden expansion of Savannah's business as a result of this union of railroads. Mr. Gould manifested more than ordinary interest in the Central's terminal facilities while here and seemed decisions of sheet states. here and seemed desirous of obtaining every bit of information possible about exports and other matters affecting railroads. The general public, naturally optimistic in nature, is more willing to accept the latter view, and a hopeful tone prevails.

ESTABLISHING TRADE RELATIONS. As to the farmers it was different. Expectation soon ripened into realization. During the odd hours during which their association was not in session, many of them made business and merchants. ness arrangements with factors and merchants calculated to result beneficially to all concerned. This was one feature of their meeting which was not looked for. While the farmers were not followed and stared at by hundreds they can present a better credit showing up to the present time than the rail-road magnate. Those who cultivated their friendship have something to show for it already.

ORDINARY CIVILITIES. THAT'S ALL. The announcement that President Harrison and his postmaster general may visit Savan-nah has caused hardly a ripple. If they come, they will be properly received. Savannah re-spects the honorable offices they hold too much not to do that. But there will be no audation and exceedingly little enthusiasm except that which the colored members of the president's political party may show. Savanexcept that which the colored members of the president's political party may show. Savannah is not the home of many admirers of either Harrison or Wanamaker, and the people will not perjure their convictions in order to please the visitors. They can expect all the formal courtesies due them, but it is doubtful if they will get much more.

It is interesting to note the difference if Mr. Cleveland or Senator-elect Hill had been mentioned as a probable visitor. Each has a host of friends, many admiring the one equally as much as the other. By this time arrangements would have been made to give them a rousing THOSE AWFUL SUNDAY LAWS The men who made the Sunday laws probably thought that they were doing a righteous and wise act. Savannah rises up now to tell their spirits that they were mistaken. The Sunday laws were all right as long as they were not enforced.

People rather liked to have them as showing that Savannah was an intensely religious city. Now they think that they are nearly all wrong and are willing to do without the surface reputation for the sake of old-time convenirespect save een. The liquor traffic will be granted no favors. So far as the saloonkeepers are concerned the Sunday law will be as rigidly enforced as on last Sunday, when but one man had the temerity to sell a drop. It cost him $100 in the end.

Outside of the Sunday law the new mayor is establishing a fine record by the way in which he is breaking up vulgarity and profanity in public speech. Day after day has seen a number of offenders of this class before him. In each case he has inflicted a fine of $5. The beneficial effect of this vigorous policy is already apparent all this vigorous policy is already apparent all over the city. BERAKING UP GAMBLING.

Gambling is another vice that is being broken up. The city has been full of places where negroes congregated at night and on Sundays to gratify this passion. Numerous rows and murders have resulted. One of the first steps of this administratation was to attempt to break them up. The police were given special orders to look out for them, and several places have been raided. The war on them will continue until the last one is rooted out.

The solicitor general has also shut up the half dozen gambling dives where white "sports" were accustomed to gather. Their proprietors had been fined several times, but after the lapse of a few weeks they boldly started the game again. The next time, it has been broadly hinted to them, a striped suit and a place on the chaingang will be given BREAKING UP GAMBLING.

and a place on the chaingang will be given them in addition to a fine. With such an unpleasant prospect staring them in the face, it is safe to say the wheel and the cards will remain long dusty.

NEVER BROKEN UP. NEVER BROKEN UP.

Cock fighting still flourishes, though. As it is conducted just outside the city limits the police cannot interfere. Local mains are frequent on Sundays, and are well attended. Just now the sports are looking forward with much relish to a big main booked for February 24th, 25th, and 26th between Savannah and Augusta to a big main booked for February 24th, 25th, and 25th between Savannah and Augusta birds, with perhaps a few individual fights between local birds and those of other towns. As there has been no trouble with the authorities in the past, none is expected this time.

Stubbornly fought battles and heavy betting are locked for are looked for.

Business in retail circles is generally dull. In the dry goods branch, in particular, little is doing. The winter's trade has not been as heavy as was expected, and merchants feel somewhat disappointed.

Now that the money scare is over, they look forward to a heavy spring trade, which will open up early in March. Larger stocks than usual will be carried this spring, and there is an air of confidence strongly in contrast to that which prevailed such a short time ago. THE CONTRACT LET.

HOLDING ON TO THEIR STOCK. With the Hope That It Will Make Then

Rich Yet. SAVANNAH, Ga., February 15.-[Special.] SAYANNAH, Ga., February 15.—[special]—Quite a number of Savannahians are holders of stock in the Nicaraugua Canal Company, and they are likely to keep it.

Several years ago, a Bay street business man received a letter from a member of the canal company in New York. The purport of the letter was this:

letter was this:

Can't you place some of the Nicaraugua Canal stock in Savannah? We want $5,000 from your city. We must raise $400,000 to pay certain concessions in Nicaraugua and Costa Rica. A certain number of shares will be divided among those who contribute the $400,000. We think you will not regret having made the investment, as it will probably prove to be a profitable one. It is a good thing, and you had better go into it.

The Savannah man wrote back something I don't know anything about Nicaragua Cana stock. If it is such a good thing, why don't you

In reply he received a statement to the effect that it was thought advisable to distribute the stock in all the Atlantic coast cities, and the amount allotted to Savannah was valued at $5,000. The Savannah man consulted with some of his friends, with the result that he and four others chipped in $1,000 each. In the course of time each secured 200 shares of the canal stock, the par value of which is $100 per share. One of the five has since died, and his estate sold the stock at 40 cents on the dollar, getting $800. Anothe of the five sold out at 45 cents on the dollar getting $900. As far as known the other three still hold their stock, expecting to get par or a great deal more for it. One thinks it not improbable, if the government gets the canal, that his shares will bring him $100,000 or more. Before the panic last fall the shares were quoted at 80 cen

GOVERNOR PERCY'S WORKS

Presented to the Georgia Historical Society SAVANNAH, Ga., February 15 .- [Special.]-

The Georgia Historical Society has been pre sented, through Captain John R. F. Tatnall, with a collection of valuable books, the gift of Mrs. B. F. Percy, widow of the late distinguished governor of South Carolina. The works contain the writings of Governor Percy, who was a most versatile writer and interesting poet. Governor Percy was a nephew of Commodore Percy, and a friend and contemporary of the late Commodore Tatnall. It is an interesting coincidence that as the years have rolled by the son of Commodore Tatnall, through the medium of the Georgia Historical Society, should give the dead author's works to the people of his own distinguished father's native state. San Souci, General Percy's old homestead, still stands at Greenville, S. C., and is occupied by his son, the Hon. William B. Percy. George Mason, a Negro, Knocks His Wite the Head With an Ax and Buries Her

ALBANY, Ga., February 15.-[Special.] harrible murder has come to light near Brawood, in Terrell county. George Mason, a negro, has been working on the Crawford place, near Bronwood, for some time past. He had a wife and one child—a little boy—ball. now his wife is dead, cruelly murdered by he husband, his son is homeless, and Mason is wanderer over the earth.

The result of the change in Mason's da mestic affairs came to light Friday morning for the first time in Dawson, which is new for the first time in Davison, Bronwood, and leaked out by the coroner has son's wife.

The cause of the demand for an inc a story related by Mason's son, Nick, a by twelve or fourteen years of age, to friends in Bronwood yesterday morning. The born story as heard from him and repeated to a representative of The Albany News and Ab vertiser is as follows:

"About yesterday a week ago" (that a Thursday a week ago) "pa got mad with ma and, taking her to a branch near the house said he was going to kill her. He made me go along, and, after we got to the branch, a knocked ma in the head with an ax. He then dug a hole in a kind of muddy place on the side o' the branch and put the body in it. He couldn't cover it up well, and he took the bark off of a stump near by and covered part of the grave. After he had done this he took ne off and gave me away, saying that he was going to leave. I haven't seen him since and don't know where he is." Nick Mason's story having been delivered in straightforward manner, he was asked to lead to where the crime was committed an where he had reported the body was build. He did so, and the body was found buried just as he had described. It was developed in conversation in B wood that the last seen of George Mason be vas preparing to leave, and said that he was going near Talbotton. This, though, might have been a ruse of his to deceive his pursue. if the crime was detected.

TALMAGE TALKS TO A LABGE AND VERY ATTENTIVE

AUDIENCE. What the Noted Brooklyn Divine Found in His Text of Interest to His Hearers

BROOKLYN, N. Y., February 15.—[Special.] Great audiences again assembled at the service by Dr. Talmage in the Brooklyn Academy of Music this morning and also at The Christian Herald service in the New York Academy of Music in the evening. The remarkable in-terest in the latter continues without evidence of abatement. At the service in New York of abatement. At the service in New York last Sunday evening there were many emotional episodes among the vast audience and tonight these were repeated, hundreds pledging themselves anew to Christian lives henceforth. Dr. Talmage took for his text at the Brooklyn Academy: "Faith without words is dead," James II, 20.

The Roman Catholic church has been charged with putting too much stress upon good works and not enough upon faith. I charge protestantism with putting not enough stress upon good works as connected with salvation. Good works will never save a man, but if a man have not good works he has no real faith and no genuine religion. There are those who depend upon the fact that they are all faith and no genuine/religion. There are those who depend upon the fact that they are all right inside, while their conduct is wrong outside. Their religion, for the most part, is made up talk—vigorous talk, fluenttalk, boast-ful talk, perpetual talk. They will entertain you by the hour in telling you how good they are. They come up to such a higher life that they have no patience with ordinary Christians in the discharge of their duty. As near as I can tell, this ocean craft is mostly gail and very little tonnage. Foretopmast staysail, foretopmast studding sail, maintopstaysail, foretopmast studding sail, maintop-sail, mizzen-topsail—everything, from flying jib to mizzen spanker, but making no useful voyage. Now, the world has got used of this, younge. Now, the world has got tired of this, and it wants a religion that will work into all the circumstances of life. We do not want a new religion, but the old religion applied in

Yonder is a river with steep and rocky banks, and it roars like a young Niagara as it rolls on over its rough bed. It does nothing but talk about itself all the way from its source in the mountain to the place where it empties into the sea. The banks are so steep the cattle cannot come down to drink. It does not run one fertilizing rill into the adjoining field. It has not one grist mill or factory on either fogs. No one cares when that river is born among the rocks, and no one cares when it dies into the sea. But youder is another river, and it mosses its banks with the warm tides, and it rocks with floral lullaby the water lilies asleep on its bosom. It invites herds of cattle and flocks of sheep and coveys of birds to come there and drink. It has three grist mills on one side and six cotton factories on the other. It is the wealth of 200 miles of luxuriant farms. The birds of heaven chanted when it was born in the mountains, and the ocean shipping will press in from the sea to hail it as it comes down to the Atlantic coast. The one river is a man who lives for himself. The other river is a man who lives for others.

Do you know how the site of the ancient city of Jerusalem was chosen? There were two brothers who had adjoining farms. The one brother had a large family, the other had no family. The brother with a large family said: "There is my brother with no family; he must be lonely, and I will try to cheer him up, and I will take some of the sheaves from my field in the night-time and set them over on his farm, and say nothing about it." The other brother said: "My brother has a large family, and it is very difficult for him to support them, and I will help him along, and I will take some of the sheaves from my farm in the night-time and set them over on his farm, and say nothing about it." So the work of transference went on night after night, and night after night; but every morning things seemed to be just as they were, for though sheaves had been sub-tracted from each farm, sheaves had also been added, and the brothers were perplexed and could not understand. But one night the brothers happened to meet while making this generous transference, and the spot where they met was so sacred that it was chosen as the site of the city of Jeruit was chosen as the site of the city of Jerusalem. If that tradition should prove unfounded, it will nevertheless stand as a beautiful allegory setting forth the idea that wherever a kindly and generous and loving act is performed, that is the spot fit for some in of commemoration. I have often spoken to you about faith, but now I speak to you about works, for "faith without works is dead." I think you will agree with me in the statement that the great want of this world is more practical religion.

We want practical religion to go into all merchandise. It will supervise the labeling of goods. It will not allow a man to say that a thing was made in one factory when it was made in another. It will not allow the merchant to say that watch was manufactured to Convey Switzerland, when it was in Geneva, Switzerland, when it was manufactured in Massachusetts. It will not allow the merchant to say that wine came from Madeira when it came from California. Practical religion will walk along by the store shelves, and tear off all the tags that make mirrogramments in the stage of the make mirrogramments. misrepresentation. It will not allow the merchant to say that is pure coffee, when dandelion root and chiccory and other ingredients go into it. It will not allow him to say that is pure sugar, when there are in it say that is pure sugar, when there are in it sand and ground glass.

When practical religion gets its full swing in the world, it will go down the streets, and it will come to the shoe store and rip off the fictitious soles of many a fine-looking pair of shoes, and show that it is pasteboard sand-wiched between the sound leather. And this practical religion will go right into a grocery store, and it will pull out the plug of all the adulterated syrups, and it will dump into the ashbarrel, in front of the store, the cassia bark that is sold for cinnamon and the brickdust that is sold for cinnamon and the brickdust that is sold for cayenne pepper; and it will shake out the Prussian blues from the tea leaves, and it will sit from the flour plaster of Paris and bonedust and scapstone, and it will by chemical analysis separate the one quart of Ridgewood water from the flow honest drops of cow's milk, and it will throw out the live animalcules from the

There has been so much adulteration of articles of food that it is an amazement to me articles of food that it is an amazement to me that there is a healthy man or woman in America. Heaven only knows what they put into the spices and into the sugars and into the butter and into the apothecary drug. But chemical analysis and the microscope have made wonderful revelations. The board of health in Massaful revelations. The board of health in Massachusetts analyzed a great amount of what was called pure coffee, and found in it not one particle of coffee. In England there is a law that forbids the putting of alum in bread. The public authorities examined fifty-one backages of bread, and found them all guilty. The honest physician, writing a prescription, does not know but that it may bring death instead of health to his patient, because there may be one of the drugs weakened by a cheaper article, and another drug may he in full force, and so the prescription may have just the opposite effect intended. Oil of wormwood warranted pure from Boston was found to have forty-one per from Boston was found to have forty-one pe cent of resin and alcohol and chloroform Scammony is one of the most valuable medi-cal drugs. It is very rare, very precious. It is the sap or the gum of a tree or a bush in Syria. The root of the tree is exposed, an incision is made into the root and then shells Incision is made into the root and then shells are placed at this incision to catch the sap or the gum as it exudes. It is very precious, this scammony. But the peasant mixes it with cheaper material; then it is taken to Aleppo, and then the merchant there mixes it with a cheaper material; then it comes on to the wholesale druggist in London or New York, and he mixes it with a cheaper material; then it comes to the retail druggists. material; then it comes to the retail druggists, and he mixes it with a cheaper material, and by the time the poor sick man gets it into his bottle, it is ashes and chalk and sand, and some of what has been called pure scammony after analysis has been found to be no scammony at all.

Now, practical rall.

In one or two years—trying to fix the matter up with the Lord by building a church or a university or a hospital—deluding themselves with the idea that the Lord would be so pleased with the gift He would forget the swindle. Now, as such a man may not have any liturgy in which to say his prayers, I will compose for him one which he practically is making: "O Lord, we, by getting a 'corner' in breadstuffs, swindled the people of the United States out of $10,000,000. and made suffering all up and down the land, and we would like to compromise this matter with Thee. Thou knowest it was a scaly job, but then it was smart. Now, here we compromise it. Take I per cent of the profits, and with that I per cent you can build an asylum for these poor miserable ragamuffins of the streets, and I will take a yacht and go to Europe, forever and ever. Amen!"

Ah! ny friends, if a man hath gotten his estate wrongfully and he build a line of hospitals and universities from here to Alaska, he cannot atone for it. After awhile, this man who has been getting a "corner" in wheat dies, and then Satan gets a "corner" in wheat dies, and then Satan gets a "corner" in wheat dies, and then Satan gets a "corner" in wheat dies, and then Satan gets a "corner" in wheat dies, and now he is himself wiped out. No collaterals on which to make a spiritual loan. Eternal defalcation!

But this practical religion will not only rectify all merchandise; it will also rectify all mechanism and all toil. A time will come when a man will work as faithfully by the job as he does by the day. You say when anything is slightingly done, "Oh, that was done by the job." You can tell by the swiftness or slowness with which a hackman drives whether he is hired by the hour or by the excursion. If he is hired by the excursion, he whips up the horses so as to get around and get another customer. All styles of work have to be inspected. Ships inspected, horses inspected, anchinery inspected. Boss to watch the journeyman. Capitalist coming down unexpectedly to watch the b that holds on until you read the third chapter. Spavined horses, by skilful dose of jockeys, for several days made to look spry. Wagon tires poorly put on. Horses poorly shod. Plastering that cracks without any provocation and falls off. Plumbing that needs to be plumbed, Imperfect car-wheel that halts the whole train with a hot-box. So little practical religion in the mechanism of the world. I tell you, my riends, the law of man will never section. friends, the law of man will never rectify these things. It will be the all pervading influence of the practical religion of Jesus Christ that will make the change for the bet-

Yes, this practical religion will also on the agriculture, which is proverbially honest, but needs to be rectified, and it will keep the farmer from sending to the New York market veal that is too young to kill, and when the farmer farms on shares it will keep the man who does the work from making his half three-fourths. the work from making his half three-fourths, and it will keep the farmer from building his post and rail fence on his neighbor's premises, and it will make him shelter his cattle in the winter storm, and it will keep the old elder from working on Sunday afternoon in the new ground where nobody sees him. And this practical religion will hover over the house, and over the barn, and over the field, and over

Yes, this practical religion of which I speak will come into the learned professions. The lawyer will feel his responsibility in defending Yes, this practical religion of which I speak will come into the learned professions. The lawyer will feel his responsibility in defending innocence and arraigning evil and expounding the law, and it will keep him from charging for briefs he never wrote, and for pleas he never made, and for percentages he never earned, and from robbing widow and orphan because they are defenseless. Yes, this practical religion will come into the physician's life, and he will feel his responsibility as the conservator of the public health, a profession honored by the fact that Christ himself was a physician. And it will make him honest, and when he does not understand a case he will say so, not trying to cover up lack of diagnosis with ponderous technicalities, or send the patient to a reckless drug store because the apothecary happens to pay a percentage on the prescriptions sent. And this practical religion will come to the school teacher, making her feel her responsibility in preparing our youth for usefulness and for happiness and for honor, and will keep her from giving a sly box to a dull head, chastising him for what he cannot help, and sending discouragement all through the after years of a lifetime. This practical religion will also come to the newspaper men, and it will help them in setting forth the best interests of society, and it will keep them from putting the sins of the world in larger type than its virtues, and its mistakes than its achievements. Yes, this religion, this practical religion will come and put its hand on what is called good society, elevated society, successful society, so that people will have their expenditures within their income, and they will exchange the hypocritical "not at home" for the honest explanation "too tired," or "too busy to see you," and will keep innocent reception from becoming intoxicated conviviality.

Yes, there is great opportunity for missionary work in what are called the successful classes of society. It is no rare thing now to see a fashionable woman intoxicated in the urally flushed, and then she talls into its of ex-cruciating laughter about nothing, and then she offers sickening flatteries, telling some homely man how well he looks, and then she is helped into the carriage, and by the time the carriage gets to her home it takes the hus-band and the coachman to get her up the stairs. The report is, she was taken suddenly ill at a german. Ah! no. She took too much ill at a german. Ah! no. She took too much champagne and mixed liquors, and got drunk. That was all.

That was all.

Yea, this practical religion will have to come in and fix up the marriage relation in America. There are members of churches who have too many wives and too many husbands. Society needs to be expurgated and washed and fumigated and Christianized. We have missionary societies to reform Mulberry street. in New York, and Bedford street, Philadelphia, and Shoreditch, London, and the Brooklyn docks; but there is need of an organization to reform much that is going on in Beacon street, and Madison square, and Rittenhouse square, and West End, and Brooklyn Heights, and Brooklyn Hill. We want this practical religion not only to take hold of what are called the higher classes. The trouble is that people have an idea they can do all their religion on Sunday with hymn-book and prayer-book and liturgy, and some of them sit in church rolling up their eyes as though they were ready for translation, when their Sabbath is bounded on all sides by an inconsistent life, and while you are expecting to come out from under their arms the wings of an angel, there will come out from their forehead the horns of a beast.

There has got to be a new departure in religion. I do not say a new religion. Oh, no; but the old religion brought to new appliances. In our time we have had the daguerrectype and the ambrotype and the photograph; but it is the same old sun, and these arts are only new appliances of the old sunlight. So this glorious gospel is just what we want to photograph the image of God on one soul, and Yea, this practical religion will have to come new appliances of the old sunlight. So this glorious gospel is just what we want to photograph the image of God on one soul, and daguerreotype it on another soul. Not a new gospel, but the old gospel put to new work. In our time we have had the telegraphic invention and the electric light invention; but they are all the children of the old electricity, an element that the philosophers have a long while that the philosophers have a long while known much about. So this electric gospel needs to flash its light on the eyes and ears and souls of men, and become a telephonic medium to make the deaf hear; a telegraphic medium to dart invitation and warning to all after analysis has been found to be no scammony at all.

Now, practical religion will yet rectify all this. It will go to those hypocritical professors of religion who got a "corner" in corn and wheat in Chicago and New York, sending prices up and up until they were beyond the reach of the poor, keeping these breadstuffs in their own hands, or controlling them until the prices going up and up and up, they were, after awhite, ready to sell, and they sold out, making themselves millionaires

And scores of Christian lawyers as eminent in the church of God as they are eminent at the the church of God as they are eminent at the Merchants who took their religion into werry-day life: Arthur Tappan, derided in his day because he established that system by which we come to find out the commercial which we come to find out the commercial which we come to find out the commercial standing of business men, starting that entire system, derided for it then, himself, as I knew him well, in moral character A 1. Monday mornings inviting to a room in the top of his storehouse the cierks of his establishment, asking them about their worldly interests and their very contractive of the storehold of the contractive of asking them about their worldly interests and their spiritual interests, then giving out a hymn, leading in prayer, giving them a few words of good advice, asking them what church they attended on the Sabbath, what the text was, whether they had any especial troubles of their own. Arthur Tappan. I never heard his eulogy pronounced. I pronounce it now. And other merchants just as good. William E. Dodge in the iron business, Moses H. Grinnell in the shipping business, Peter Cooper in the glue business. Scores of men just as good as they were.

men just as good as they were.
Farmers who take their religion into their occupation: Why, this minute their horses and wagons stand around all the meeting houses in America. They began this day by a prayer to God, and when they get home at noon, after they have put their horses up, will offer a prayer to God at the table, seeking a blessing, and this summer there will be in their fields not one dishonest head of rye, not one dishonest ear of corn, not one dishonest apple. Worshiping God today away up among the Berkshire hills, or away down amid the lagoons of Florida, or away out amid the mines of Colorado, or along the banks of the Passaic and the Raritan, where I knew them better because I went to school with them.

Mechanics who took their religion into their occupations: James Brindley, the famous millwright; Nathaniel Bowditch, the famous ship chandler; Elihu Burritt, the famous ship chandler; Elihu Burritt, the famous ship chandler; Elihu Burritt, the famous ship chandler arms which have made the hammer

Give your heart to God and then fill your life with good works. Consecrate to him your store, your shop, your banking house, your factory and your home. They say no one will hear it. God will hear it. That is enough. You hardly know any one else hear it. God will hear it. That is enough. You hardly know any one else than Wellington as connected with the victory at Waterloo; but he did not do the hard fighting. The hard fighting was done by the Somerset cavalry and the Ryland regiments, and Kempt's infantry, and the Scots Grays and the Life Guards. Who cares, if only the day was won.

In the latter part of the last century a girl in England became a kitchen-maid in a farmhouse. She had many styles of work and much hard work. Time rolled on, and she married the son of a weaver, of Halifax. They were industrious; they saved money enough were industrious; they saved money enough after a while to build them a home. On the morning of the day when they were to enter that home, the young wife arose at 4 o'clock, entered the front door yard, knelt down, consecrated the place to 4 o'clock, entered the front door yard, knelt down, consecrated the place to God, and there made this solemn vow: "O Lord, if thou wilt bless me in this place, the poor, shall have a share of it." Time rolled on, and a fortune rolled in. Children grew up around them, and they all became affluent, one a member of parliament, in a public place declared that his success came from that prayer of his mother in the door yard. All of them were affluent. Four thousand hands in their factories. They built dwelling houses for laborers at cheap rents, and when they were invalid and could not pay they had the houses for nothing. One of these sons came to this country, admired our parks, went back, bought land, opened a great public park, and made it a present to the city of Halifax, England. They endowed an orphanage, they endowed two almsnouses. All England has heard of the generosity and the good works of the Crossleys. Moral: Consecrate to God your small means and your humble surroundings, and you will have larger means and grander surroundings. "Godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is and of that which is to come." "Have faith in God by all means, but remember that faith without works is dead."

Boils and Carbuncles. Boils and Carbuncles.

It seems strange that any one will suffer with boils, carbuncles, etc., when Dr. Bull's Sarsaparilla will certainly prevent all such eruptive tendencies. It is a sure and safe antidote for blood poison arising from whatever source, and its use when needed should not be unnecessarily delayed. Thousands who found extensively advertised blood medicines to have no efficacy whatever, are rejoicing in the fact that Bull's Sarsaparilla is an exception, and that good health invariably follows its use Syphilitic and scrofulous symptoms disappear. that good health invariably follows its use: Syphilitic and scrofulous symptoms disappear, the skin becomes clear and free from pimples, the digestion is improved, aches and pain, cease, the weight of the body becomes greater the flesh more solid, ulcerative and consumptive tendencies disappear, the power of endurs ance is increased, weakness, dizzy spells and unnatural fatigue vanish, in a word the user of Rull's Saranacilla becomes a ricture of recoder. Bull's Sarsaparilla becomes a picture of good health and strength. Try it. Use no other —Dayton Enquirer.

"Without Question" The Finest.

SOLD BY ALL LEADING DEALERS BLUTHENTHAL & BICKART. THE SPRING POETS

Do not have the beautiful budding season to themselves. Melodious as they are they do not attract as much attention as the tell-tale symptoms that make their appearance when the blood is impure and the system is in a state of disorder. The boils and eruptions that take advantage of the season to tell their story are dumb, but eloquent. Their meaning cannot be mistaken. Spring is not by any means a beautiful season to those whose systems have been neglected until the warning comes in the shape of boils and eruptions. It is a season, however, that can be thoroughly enjoyed by those who are thoughtful enough to take time by the forelock. A bottle or two of the great tonic and blood purifier complish wonders. It drives out and dehumors of the blood. James L. Boyle, of Atlanta, writes: "I had awful sores S.S.S. and pimples on my face, and after using two bottles of S.S.S. I was cured."

The Burning Issue. The Farmers' Allance at its Ocala meeting knew what it was about when it announced financial reform as the slogan of the future.

President Lincoln at the close of the war, when asked what would be the leading issue afterwards, replied: "The financial question will be the most important one for a generation to come.'

It requires neither a prophet nor the son of a prophet to see that the masses are going to make a strong and determined fight to throw off the financial shackles forced upon them by the privileged classes-the Wall street money kings, and the monopolists. Now that sectionalism is dead, and the force bill a thing of the past, this looms up as the supreme issue. The south and west will make common cause in the coming struggle. They will stand together for tariff reform, free silver coinage, and money for the people-money that will not be entirely subject to the juggling contraction tricks of Wall street. Nobody doubts this, but how about the east? Because the goldbugs and contractionists live in the east, and control its business, there is a disposition in some quarters to fear that the democracy with its present financial ideas cannot carry that section. Pehaps this is a mistake. In the campaign of educution already begun it is becoming apparent to the eastern masses that their only hope of emerging from practical serfdom is to unite with their friends against the McKinlevites and the gold-

Let this idea once become firmly lodged in the minds of the people of the New England and middle states, and they will rally around the democratic banner. If the republicans propose to make "Blaine and Business" their rallying cry, the best way to meet it is to have something to say about "Business" ourselves.

What the people want is honest business. It is not honest business to force a robber tariff upon us that increases every workingman's living expenses 15 per cent. It is not honest business to contract the currency so that when debtor pays $1 he pays more than he owes in the principal, besides the interest. It is not honest business to put the finances of 64,000,000 people under the control of 100 men in Wall street. is not honest business to outlaw silver in the interest of a few goldbugs. It is not honest business to discriminate in favor of the monopolists and against the farmers every time. These ideas will be championed by the democracy as the party of the people. and if they do not suit the masses in the east, then all that we have to say is that they are not the worthy descendants of the embattled farmers who at Lexington fired the shot that was heard around the world.

These vital economic questions, clearly and strongly presented, will win their way in the east just as they have captured the south and west. The masses have the same interests in Massachusetts as in Texas, and if in order to reach them we find it necessary to clear the decks, we had better do it, and make every politician with the taint of monopoly or the goldbugs on his skirts walk the plank. This fight is not for the promotion of a few favorites-it is for the people!

The Original Interviewer.

James Redpath, the well-known journalist, who died the other day, claimed that he originated the practice of interviewing many years age in the columns of The Boston Advertiser.

It is possible that Mr. Redpath deserve the credit for this striking journalistic feature, but the weight of authority is against him. In a "History of Journalism," ten about twenty years ago by Frederick Hudson, the statement is made that James Gordon Bennett, the elder, was the first editor to use the interview.

Hudson's story is that directly after John Brown's invasion of Virginia the charge was made that Gerrit Smith, the famous abolitionist, had supplied him with funds. Smith feared arrest, and fled to the mountains of northern New York. Bennett knew where he was to be found, and dispatched a reporter to him with instructions o question him closely, and find out someg definite about the John Brown busi-The reporter said that he would obtain a signed statement from Smith. "No." replied Bennett, "question him, cross-exne, and write out the questions and an-The reporter suggested that it would be in the nature of a dialogue. "No," said Bennett, "it will be an interview." the first interview appeared in The Herald, and from that day to this has been a recognized and popular newspaper feature.

Mr. Redpath does not need any borrows He was a bright journalist, maga-publisher, lecturer, reformer and of good work into his life of fifty-five years, nd will not soon be forgotten. This little matter suggests the fact that nearly all of the original and startling improvements in the journalism of the past half century may be traced to the Bennetts. Undoubtedly, there was never a more remarkable newspaper family on the face of the earth. It is easy sometimes to criticize The Herald adversely, but as John R. McLean once said of his paper, The Cincinnati Enquirer, "It goes, doesn't it?"

Cæsar Is Sick.

"Imperial Casar dead and turned to clay" is a story not only of the past, but a prediction for the future.

The news now comes from Germany that the young emperor shows signs of throat trouble similar to those manifested by his father just before the cancerous development which caused his death.

Another story is that the growing very eccentric. the mad king of Bavaria, he takes long and unexpected trips in every direction. He is also becoming more exacting in small matters, demanding the most devoted obedience from everybody. Naturally, all this causes talk, and peo ple are now convinced that the war lord, as he styles himself, is sick. The death of the emperor at this stage of his career would perhaps materially affect the destiny of Europe. During his short reign, and especially since he drove Bismarck from power, William has proved himself a monarch whose clear head, dauntless courage and strong will cannot fail to leave a marked impress upon the age. In his way he is a reformer. He has undertaken the task of smashing the socialist, and at the same time he has boldly announced his intention of putting some of their leading ideas into practical operation. Under his rule the military spirit of his people has been strengthened, Germany has been centralized to the last limit, and the old doctrine of the divine right of kings has been reasserted with tremendous force, But all the Cæsars of the world have been sick men-Julius, Alexander, Napoleon, and now young William. The first had fits, the second was a drunkard, the third was an epileptic, and lost the decisive battle of Waterloo because the cancer in his stomach made him unable to plan and act at the critical moment, and the fourth and last of these lords of war is in a fair way to follow the others. Perhaps it is just as well, Germany is too powerful and enlightened to depend upon any one man. When her emperor leaves the stage his successor will appear, and the country will propably drift in the direction of democracy. When Cæsar is sick the peo ple grow stronger, and when he dies they assert their right to rule.

The Cotton Situation.

The Financial Chronicle's figures down to last Friday night show that for the week the total receipts have reached 135,735 bales gainst 160,848 bales last week and 195,103 bales the previous week, making the total receipts since the 1st of September, 1890, 5,558. 242 bales, against 5,202,643 bales for the same period of 1889-90, showing an increase since September 1, 1890, of 355,599 bales.

The exports for the week reach a total o 40,664 bales, of which 80,293 were to Great Britain, 13,505 to France and 46,866 to the est of the continent.

The speculation in cotton for future de livery at New York opened the week under review with some depression in tone, which appeared to be due mainly to the statistica position, and especially to the large excess of the visible supply in the markets of the world. But on Monday there was a stronger opening, and for a time there was some apgree of activity to the dealings, the effect of a demand to cover contracts, stimulated by a stronger report from Liverpool, which came quite unexpectedly, and admonished the bears that their position was becoming somewhat precarious. But in the last hour the advance was lost under a rumor that a report would come next day from the department of agriculture at Washington showing that the quantity of cotton remaining on plantations on the 1st of February was much larger than at the same date last year. This report came on Tuesday, and was not regarded either in New York or in Liverpool as verifying the rumors regarding its character. At any rate, the report was followed by a quick recovery of the early de cline. On Wednesday, favored by a smart advance in Liverpool, there was some further improvement in the New York market, but it was not well maintained, the speculation showing little spirit. On Wednesday an early advance, on a stronger report from Liverpool, was soon lost, and some further decline took place under full receipts at the interior towns, causing moderate selling to realize. Friday there was a sharp decline, the bulls again showing want of confidence and unloading quite freely, although Liver pool reported the loss of only a small part of her recent advance, and the close was decidedly lower, the market being unsettled and depressed by the comparatively full crop movement. Cotton on the spot was dull an nearly nominal throughout the week, and Friday declined 1-16c., middling uplands closing at 9 3-16c. The total sales for forward delivery for the week are 463,300 bales. For immediate delivery the total sales foot up this week 844

The imports into continental ports for the week have been 64,000 bales. The figures indicate an increase in the otton in sight of 511,430 bales as compared with the same date of 1890, an increase of 702,331 bales as compared with the corresponding date of 1889 and an increase of 534,515 bales as compared with 1888. The totals show that the old interior stocks ave decreased during the week 10,622 bales, and are 128,060 bales more than at the same period last year. The receipts at the same towns have been 6,600 bales more than the same week last year, and since September 1st the receipts at all the towns are 333,295 bales more than for the same time in 1889-90.

The summary shows: 1. That the total receipts from the plantations since September 1, 1890, are 5,935,973 bales; in 1889-90 were 5,450,156 bales; in 1888-89 were 5,041,-

2. That, although the receipts at the outports the past week were 135,735 bales, the qual movement from plantations was only 123,411 bales, the balance being taken from the stocks at the interior towns. Last year the receipts from the pla same week were 79,374 bales and for 1889 they were 119,436 bales.

The exports of cotton from New York for the week show a decrease compared with the week before, being 11,401 bales against 20,-

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

A RECENT English book shows that abou ,000 convicts were sent from England to the American colonies. The descendants of these peo ole now probably number some 15,000,000 or more so it will be seen that about one-fourth of our pop ulation must trace their ancestry back to pers who were forced to leave England for England' good. After all, nobody cares. One might rell be descended from one of those convicts a from the old robber harons. Their hanishmen rom their own country was nothing. The first man met a similar fate. He was expelled from the garden of Eden, and the men who have succeeded him are no better, and deserve recetter treatment. Still, it is worthy of remains that while Americans are very generally intereste in tracing their ancestry, not a single family has yet come to the front with a tree showing that its original founder in this country was a British onvict. Can it be possible that the convicts and their descendants were all short-lived, and died out in the course of two or three generations?

A day or two before the Stuffed Prophet' rophecy against silver came to cheer up the rooping spirits of the mugwumps and complete his ineligibility for the democratic nomina candid friend was trying to account for the long silence of the mugwump oracle. The Hon. Calvin Stewart Brice, of New York and Ohio, gave to a reporter of our esteemed contemporary The Chicago Tribune, this explanation:

"Mr. Cleveland did not, nor does not now, desire to stir up a discussion about anything except the tariff. Besides, he did not have the time to devote his attention to two important questions, and the tariff being the more important of the two, he let the silver problem alone. Mr. Cleveland's idea is not to occupy the public attention with too many questions at the same time. Discussed for the first public attention with too many questions at the same time.

The fact that Mr. Cleveland, as his latest letter against silver shows, has learned nothing about the silver question in the last three years, but has simply managed to retain the misinformation which he picked up in 1885, does not corroborate the rule of never talking about subjects about which he has collected ignorance, he would be as taciturn as Von Moltke, instead of being as lo-uacious as Sam Jones.

Mr. Cleveland did not practice reticence in regard to the freer coinage of silver because he had no time to devote to the subject, but be-cause it was a ticklish subject to handle. He sulked as long as he could, and long after he was detected and condemned as a skulker. When he finally had to declare the he took sides, as he always does, with the mug wumps. Differing, as usual, with the democratic party, he had the satisfaction of agreeing with himself; and he undoubtedly expects that the democratic party will meekly swallow his opinions. In this he is mistaken; but without being mis taken he would not be consistent.

But what did Mr. Brice mean by saying that Mr Cleveland regarded the silver question as 'ess im portant than the tariff? If Mr. Cleveland wa devil for the last six years, and even worse thing are in store for it. Yet he held his peace abou silver until last Tuesday night. Was this doing the right thing by the poor old country? Ough he not to have saved it before?

Will Remain a Private Citizen.

From The St. Louis Republic. When the democratic convention meets in 1892, The Republic expects to advise it to demand the will bind Mr. Cleveland as a democrat. Until then he is not bound on this issue. He is a private citizen, and it is quite clear from his letter in the coinage that he expects to remain so.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Both in the Penitentiary. ATHENS, Ga., February 13.—Editor Constitu-tion: In your daily of yesterday, in speaking of Colonel John W. Echols, among other things, you say: "He will be remembered as the lawyer for the defense in the three famous murder cases when Rountree, a student at Athens, was killed and two negroes, Echols and Johnston, were tried for it. He cleared them, proving that Rountree was accidentally killed by his own brother.

CUTHBERT, Ga., February 15 .- Editor Constitu tion: In your paper of 13th instant, I find the following note among "Flaps of the Frisket:"
"It is rumored that Editor Gunn, of The Cuthbert Liberal-Enterprise, will be at the head of the new state alliance paper, rumors of which are floating around."

Where such rumors originated I know not. Bu they are as unfounded as are most rumors. I have never been asked to take charge of any new alli-ance paper, nor have I asked to be put in charge of such paper. I have as much as I can do t attend to The Liberal-Enterprise. I am in Cuthbert and have no desire to leave the place. It is my home and all that I own of this world's good is invested in The Liberal-Enterprise. Greater is invested in The Liberal-Enterprise. Greater inducements than a new alliance paper could offer would be necessary to get me away from Cuthbert and the paper in which my all is invested. I will appreciate the favor if you will publish this statement and also make the denial of any contemplated change of base on my part as prominent as the "rumor. Respectfully, W. C. Gunn.

STOR .- It is said that the presents at the wedding of Miss Willing to young Astor, in Phila-delphia on the 17th, will amount to more than 22,000,000. Mr. William Astor, it is announce will give the young couple a completely furnished house on upper Fifth avenue, which is estimated by some persons to be worth at least $1,000,000. John Jacob Astor, the third, is now twenty-four years old. Like his father and twenty-lour years old. Like his father and grandfather, he is a man of exceptional height, standing six feet and two inches in his slippers. He is very siender in build, and has a thin, impassive face adorned with a small moustache and slight whiskers. It is said that Mrs. Astor's visiting list comprises 1.400 people, and Mise Willing's as many in New York and about 800 in Philadelphia. Invitations to the wedding are to be togs within 500. BAL TIMORE IN BRIE WHICH HATE ENGAGED he Right of Free Speech on Trial-Poli elopments in a Democratic Sense Observing Tilden's Memory.

BALTIMORE, February 15 .- [Special.]-Ar nteresting question, involving the cons tional right of free speech and its limitati has arisen in the case of Michael Cohn, the self-styled anarchist, socialist and atheist For about five months this young fellow, who is a medical student from New York city, has been preaching the overthrow of all government, in language more or less guarded, every Sunday night at a hall in the center of the city before a crowd of Russian workingmen. He is a man of splendid education and good speaker in English, German and the Judaes-German jargon; the last is his favorite

On September 28th he precipitated a public debate with orthodox Hebrews, in which he made such outrageous coarse thrusts against their religion, that the greatest disorder resulted from an attempt of a score of his opponents to answer him at once. The police raided the riotous proceeding, and ten of the orthodox Jews were fined for disturbing the peace. Cohn and his mistress, a pretty little dressmaker who presided, were not even arrested, although they had incited the disturbance. Since then the police have been watching the meetings, and the local newspapers helping them along by extensive notices. He preached free love in a most disgusting manner, and argued against the existence of God in a language that would have made decent atheists blush with shame. Finally on Sunday evening of last week he did get too excited, and as witnesses testified at the preliminary hearing, overstepped what the police and the state's attorney thought were lawful words, towit: That the workingmen should take the clubs from the policemen, and if necessary their pistols, and "do them up." He was arrested, and after two days in if necessary their pistols, and "do them up." He was arrested, and after two days in the station house and jail, has been bailed out. On Sunday night he posed as a hero before his set, and there was enthusiasm enough for his words to raise quite a considerable sumenough to pay the hall rent. It is generally believed that the police have made a great blunder in this matter, and that they have made capital for a very bad cause. The war rant for his arrest charged Cohn with using language tending to disturb the peace. language tending to disturb the peace. No such disturbance did occur, and people around town, lawyers and newspaper was think t is scarcely likely that the grand jury will indict him, and not at all probable that a jury could be found to convict him for his intem-perate language. The question comes where does freedom of speech end, and license to ncite riot begin. A PRCULIAR KINK.

The city fathers have gotten a peculiar kink, which threatens to cause some displasture for the amusement-loving public. Forepaugh's circus is booked for Baltimore in may, and one of our councilmen has introduced a bill taxing such tented performance $500 each, which would make the people of the sawdust pay $2,000 for a two days' exhibition. This high is tion. This high license suggestion is based on the fallacious idea that circuses, more that any other performances, take all the money from the city and leave none behind; there are those too who say the circus generally ends in a row and otherwise the police trouble. The of natural history as taugh the police trouble. The loven of natural history as taught by the menagerie and the populace, who love the sawdust ring, are not likely to be cheated out of their annual treat, for the high lie would mean that circuses must give Ba or their annual treat, for the high licens would mean that circuses must give Baltimon a wide berth. Some other straight-laced religionist in the council has amended the bill by raising the license of theatrical performance from $5 per week to $5 per day. Neither scheme is likely to pass.

Meanwhile, the natatorium adjoining our grand academy of music—which be heretofore been used as the hall the the concerts of the Oratorio society, will be turned into an imitation of the great exhibition of wax figures at the Elen Musee of New York city. The Kiralfys and Harry Miner are said to be prospecting for a new theater in the same neighborhood. It is also rumored that the scene of much political statemaking and hatching out of political statemaking and retired from the presidency, and has left Baltimore to go into the electric light business in the west. It will be remembered that this once great political club sent the distribution of the decrease to the statemaking decrease. business in the west, that this once great political club sent the distinguished young lawyer, Isidore Rayner, to congress four years ago, and then, after a brilliant first term, treacherously knifed him at the next election. Bishop Beckwith.

What a grand man Bishop Beckwith was. Not only in the hearts of his own people does the memory of his eloquence linger, but in the minds and hearts of many of us who are not Episcopalians, and who did not know him personally.

Who that has beard can forcet be the property of the prop and hearts of many of us who are not Episcopallans, and who did not know him personally.

Who, that has heard, can forget his interpretation of hymns? Who would not remember and want to cherish every tone and expression he gave to the Lord's prayer. His sermons live in hearts all over Georgia. I heard his last confirmation service. While he moved his eloquent hands from one head to another of his kneeling candidates, and when his deep voice soared havenward with the words, "Defend, O Lord, this Thy child, etc., until she come into Thy everlasting kingdom," I thought how good and how strengthening it is to have such a prayer offered with so much fervor in one's behalf, and involuntarily Heaned forward as if to catch some of the blessing. And so, I've no doubt, felt others who sat that Sunday with his little flock at Dalton and listened to the voice of that good man—a voice that it was a privilege to hear—a voice three weeks later was stilled. Strange Providence! Whon God deprives our earth of such gifts, I have a sweet belief that He gives them back again. Perhaps this jewel of eloquence has been dropped into the throat of a tiny prattler in one of our cities' cozy nurseries; or it may be some ruddy little boy, whose voice now is happlest in his swening call to his barnyard pets, may rise up to move hearts to noble aspirations, as the goodness and eloquence of this grand man did.

Across Line.

A CROSS LINE. The McPherson's Post Electric Line to Build to West End and Grant Park.

The Atlanta and McPherson's Post Electric line, which will be in operation in less than two months, has an important extension on foot which will materially benefit the line and at the same time fill a long felt want. As soon as the Forsyth street end of the line is completed the company proposes to build from Grant park to West End, crossing its other line at the power house, which is situated very near the Baum box factory, at McDaniel street. The power house, which is completed and in which the engines and machinery are now being placed, is just about half way between McPherson's Post and the junction of Broad and Alabama and the junction of Broad and Alabama streets, which will be the city terminus of the line now being rapidly pushed to completion. At this point it is proposed to have the cars of the cross lines meet, and under a transfer system both ends of the proposed line would become valuable feeders to the city line, as well as to the post. For instance, passengers from West End would be transferred at the power house, by close connection, to the city line, or to the post, and so with passengers from the Grant park end of the line, and both of these ends of the proposed line would, in turn, be fed from the city and post line.

The company is now investigating this extension, and its officers are very much in favor of it. Under its present management the money necessary to proceed with this improvement can be gotten without any trouble; indeed, it has already been assured.

REV. BAILEY HILL, THE MISSING COLORED PREACHER.

The Verdict of the Coroner's Jury Was That He Was Murdered—Excitement Among the Negroes.

Rev. Bailey Hill's body has been found. He is the colored preacher living near Clark-on, who disappeared several days ago. He was evidently murdered.

Since the news of Hill's disappearance spread, it has created a great deal of excitement among the negroes. The mysteriou affair was all the talk among Atlanta negroes, and in Clarkston and Stone Mountain excitement runs unusually high. Saturday and yesterday parties were engaged in scouring the woods in every direction for the missing man. Up to Saturday night his basket and hat had been found in a field about two miles from Clarkston. This gave strength to the belief that the Rev Hill had been murdered and only served to rapidly, and quite a number of the overly curious and excited went down to the scene of the tragedy. An inquest was held, and a verdict that the dead man came to his death at the hands of unknown parties was found. The following dispatch tells the story of the finding of the body:

The body of Rev. Bailey Hill, the colored Baptist minister who has been missing since a week ago last Friday, was found this morning in an old field, one mile south of Clarkston, near the home of Mr. Wash Brand, and two miles north of where Hill's hat and basket were found several days ago. He was evidently murdered, as the ground and weeds where his body was found, showed signs of a considerable tussel. Dr. W. C. Moore, J. P., of Clarkston, in the absence of the coroner, empanelled a jury of in-quest and began an investigation of Hill's death. There was but one witness before the jury, save that of Dr. L. H. Jones. The evijury, save that of Dr. L. H. Jones. The evidence he gave in tends to implicate three young white boys living here, two of them being highly connected. Dr. Jones examined the body and gave it as his opinion that Hill came to his death from wounds upon the head made by a blunt instrument, and from choking. The body was laying face down, and the face buried in a pool of blood. The right hand pants pocket and right hand overcost pocket.

buried in a pool of blood. The right hand pants pocket and right hand overcoat pocket were turned out, showing that his pockets were rifled by his murderers.

The negroes are very much excited over the murder. The grand jury of DeKaib county is now in session, and will begin an investigation tomorrow. The verdict of the coroner's jury is that Hill came to his death by the hands of some party or parties unknown.

POLITICS IN CHARLESTON

CHARLESTON, S. C., February 15.—[Special.]
"It's rather early in the game, but it goes," remarked a shrewd Charleston politician to THE CONSTITUTION man. "And," he continued, in a meditative mood, "it's going to be a warm time." Pressed to explain further, he ointed out the list of the grand jurors who had just been drawn to serve for the year. (The grand juries in South Carolina serve the year, and not for one term of court.) It had not escaped his eagle political eye that there not escaped his eagle political eye that there was something peculiar in the constitution of that grand jury, and he pointed out the peculiarities to be in the names of some of the members. Among these are the names of a distinguished ex-mayor and of an equally distinguished ex-mayor and of an equally distinguished candidate for the sheriffalty, both of whom took a very prominent part in the late unpleasantness in the Palmetto state, on the side of Farmer Tillman. These two gentlemen especially are known to be at daggers points with Sheriff Ferguson, who is the big man in local politics and it is broadly intimated that their presence in the jury box means mischief and a heap of it. The municipal election occurs in December next and the means mischief and a heap of it. The municipal election occurs in December next and the sheriff, who is the head of the regular democracy as it calls itself, is a known supporter of Mayor Bryan, the incumbent, who will be a caudidate for a second term. It is thought that the ox-mayor referred to will also be a candidate, or at least will back the opposition to Mayor Bryan, and this is where the trouble is predicted to come in.

Governor Tillman will have a very import. art finger in the pie as he has the appointment of the commissioners of election, and as he can't possibly please both sides his position is not a pleasant one. Governor Tillman's followers here are aiready adenouncing him in round terms. He has almost entirely ignored them in filling the offices, and the indications now are that he will equally ignore them when now are that he will equally ignore them when the time comes for the appointment of the commissioners. The fact is a bargain is a bar-gain, and what was promised for Governor Tillman before he became governor has to be performed, as the Tillmanites have learned to their disgust.

A SKETCH OF HIS LIFE.

Colonel Seaborn Jones was born in Milledgeville, Baldwin county, in October, 1825, and moved from there to Carroll county, and then to Paulding, now Polk. He was the third son of Judge John A. Jones, and was a brother to John W., Robert A., Abraham and Thomas Jones.

Colonel Jones was a graduate of the state university, and afterwards read law and was admitted to the bar, but abandoned the law and devoted his attention to agriculture.

In 1848, during the gold excitement, he and his brother Ham went to California, and Colonel Jones located in San Francisco, and commenced practicing law, but decided to travel and went to Central America, remained some time, and came back to the United States and visited all the principal cities.

time, and came back to the United States and visited all the principal cities.

He returned to Polk county in 1851. In the first of the war he went and commanded the Polk Rifles, and when enough men were together to make a legion he was was elected colonel of Philips Legion. He made a most enviable record as a brave, courageous solution.

He was married in 1857, in Lawrence county, to Miss Lou Guyton. She died in 1874. She was a noble, Christian woman, and was universally beloved. Colonel Jones was married again in 1879 to Miss Mary Pressley, of this county, a daughter of E. B. Pressley. Colonel Jones has resided ever since in Polk county.

He represented Polk county in the legislature in 1876 with distinction. He was one of the most valuable representatives Polk ever had.

Colonel Jones was chiefly instrumental in the building of the East and West railroad, and it was through his efforts that the East Tennesssee, Virginia and Georgia railroad came through Rockmart.

Colonel Jones was not only the owner of the Colone; Jones was not only the owner of the finest farm in this section, but owned one of Rockmart's famous state quarries. His death has cast a deep pall of gloom over the whole county. He was a liberal, public-spirited citizen, and was a gentleman of wide information.

His death was a great shock to all. He was noted for his liberality to the churches; not only to the white, but gave to the colored people with a liberal hand. He was deeply interested in all things pertaining to the advancement of Rockmart. He gave a five-acre plot of land for the Piedmont institute.

He sleeps now in the cold arms of death, but his memory will ever be fresh in the hearts of the people.

DOWN THE VALLEY.

From The Detroit Free Press.

Here, between the fir-covered sides of the parallel ranges of mountains, is a valley half a nile wide and ten miles long, its upper end beginning far up in the grim hills. It winds about like a river, and here and there it is crossed by a creek which seems a thread of silver trailing along the

A carpet of grass and flowers-here and there a grove—birds flying up and down—a warm and gentle sun pouring down from out a clear June sky. As we look down upon this valley we are reded of Paradise. Never a scene on earth more peaceful. One swinging in a hammock under one of those green trees beside the brook would find self as near to the peace and quietness of heaven as any spot on earth affords.

There is a herd of buffaloes grazing afar up the valley. There are deer in the groves. Three or four wild horses are standing in the brook, while others are lying on the grass a few yards away. Hares scamper to and fro in playful mood, and there is nothing to frighten the most timid. The peaceful influence is so powerful that we hush our voices as we look down.

In some awful convulsion of Nature these grim mountains were heaved up from the bowels of the moditaris were heaved a place—landmarks of a mighty conflict of elemente. At the same time Nature created this valley as an offset. Here on the mountain is desolation and despair, down there beauty and contentment.

Away up among the dark hills we see a black cloud rising up into the clear skies. But for its blackness one might believe it a signal smoke made by the Indians. It is a cloud trying to lift itself over the mountain from the east side. It be gan forming fifty miles away, and it has traveled slowly and followed the windings of rivers and creeks and exacted tribute from ponds and lakes, drops-gills-quarts-barrels-tons of water have n absorbed and lifted up as the cloud traveled, attraced it from its first formation.

The cloud lifts itself up and up, and in its struggles it sways like a balloon. As it nears the mountains the vapors are condensed and become heavier, and as the weight increases the struggle becomes fiercer. There is no by-play of thunder and lightning; only a black menacing cloud fighting itself.

Up! Up! Up!
An! Heaven help them! There is nothing but animal life in the valley so far as we can see, but every on-looker utters a groan of despair as he sees the cloud suddenly fall out of sight behind the peaks. What does that signify? It means that the cloud could not lift itself high enough to clear the mountain, and that when its lower edge his that tall peak on a line with us there came. clear the mountain, and that when its lower edge hit that tall peak on a line with us there came a cleudburst. The tons of water held in that big cloud fell to earth with a force you can scarcely conceive. Trees were made into matchwood. Rocks weighing a thousand tons were whirled about. Boulders which a hundred horses could not pull from their beds are sent flying down the mountain-side like marbles. Every handful of earth—every tree, shrub, vine, flower—every stone, rock and boulder which could have been moved by the blast of a hundred pounds of powder is swept in one awful avalanche into the mouth of the valley!

We hear the crash. We feel the mountain what has happened and warms them to flee. In ten seconds every living thing in sight in the val-ley is rushing down its length. Here and there a deer turns to the right or left and finds applace

and whining in terror

Look up the valley! No man will ever see such a sight twice in his lifetime. There is a wall across the valley—a wall of rearing, tumbling, seething, foaming waters. Its hight is eight or ten feet, and its speed is that of a railroad train. The buffaloes were the furthest up the valley-Watch them coming! The herd numbers about fifty, and every animal runs for his life. Now buffalo, deer, wolf, horse and hare are coming in a wild more than the coming in the seed of the coming in buffalo, deer, wolf, horse and hare are coming in a wild mob, and close behind them that foam-crested wave of death. As it reaches the trees they melt away. As it tears along the sides of the valley great rocks are loosened and carried along. The rush is led by a sorrel horse—his new coat shining like velvet—his eyes full of excitement—his ears laid flat back. He is two hundred feet ahead of everything, and we wave our hats and cheer him as he passes us.

ahead of everything, and we wave our nats and cheer him as he passes us.
Roll! Tumble! Foam! Crash! The waters are littered with trunk and branch and bush. The noise is deafening. The power is so great that the mountain is shaking. We clutch the bushes at our side and hold our breath as the wave strikes.

It is over. Looking up the valley we see—what? Never a blade of grass or flower or bush or tree! Simply a track of desolation which Nature cannot restrict in a decen-year.

Simply a track of desolation which Nature cannot restore in a dozen years.

Down the valley—the same sight. Nothing left behind but rock and mud. A paradise has been turned into desolation almost in the twinkling of an eye. Where peace and plenty reigned a quarter of an hour ago is now a channel of ruin—a valley of despair—an acreage over which the wolf may prowl and the serpents crawl without finding food.

Halford in Thomasville-Box Party at Give's-Entertainment in Washing-notice of an entertainment given at the opera house for charitable purposes, has the following to say of Miss Halford, of Washington, D. C., daughter of Secretary Halford.

Miss Halford has been a pupil of Mrs. Hugh Muss Halford has been a pupil of Mrs. Hugh Angier, of this city;

"Miss Jannette Halford rendered 'Beauty's Eyes' in a faultless manner. She has a rich, flexible voice, and it has been thoroughly cultivated. Miss Halford responded to encore by singing 'Away Down on the S'wanee River.' This popular air was splendidly rendered, and caught the audience from the first note. Miss Halford is a general favorite here, and her singing was greatly encoved by every one." joyed by every one." The dance of Miss Annie Dunn's last Tuesday in honor of the "T. D. C." club complimentary to Misses Kate Dorsey and Sarah Cohen, was given in inimitable style. The decorations of the drawing rooms showed artistic taste and design. drawing rooms showed artistic taste and design.

The costumes worn by the young ladies were strikingly pretty, and handsomer ones never graced an Atlanta ballroom. Those present were

The Eclectic Literary Musical Circle held a very pleasant meeting at Miss Beasie Hanna's, on Cain street, on Friday evening, the 13th instant.

QUIMAN, Ga., February 15.—[Special.]—The St. Valentine banquet has been on the qui vive over the great social event for weeks. It came off Friday night at the Hotel Marie, and was decidedly the greatest and most successful social event in Quitman's history. The guests began to arrive by 8:30 o'clock and in an hour the spacious parlors were filled with as gay and handsome a Washington, Ga., February 15.—[Special.]— Miss Mickell, of Charleston, has been visiting Miss Kate Kemme, and on Tuesday evening last Miss Kate Kemme, and on Iuesday evening last a charming and select entertainment was given in her honor by Mr. B. S. Irvin. The beautiful home of the bacholor mayor of Washington, has been described in THE CONSTITUTION. It has had many improvements since then. The owner, a gentleman of great taste, is very fond of society, and entertains beautifully.

HARMONY GROVE. Ga., February 15.—[Special.]

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Hood, of this place, gave an elegant and recherche reception on Thursday night to the society ladies of our town, in honor of Miss Willie Northcote, of Marietta, Ga. Mr. and Mrs. Hood's handsome home on upper Main street is splendidly adapted to the giving of en-tertainments, and last Wednesday evening their scious parlors were thronged with the elite of our town. Rare and costly hot house plants, vine and evergreens decorated the hall, reception room and dining room, and the beautiful and harmoni-ous blending of colors and designs was the sub-ject of general remark among the guests.

At the Theater.

After a very successful engagement in Atlanta, Mr. Roland Reed and his company of comedians left last night for Knoxville.

In his unique creation, Captain Tarbox, Mr. Red clinched his hold on the Atlanta public. He is undoubtedly one of the south's greatest ites, and in his new comedy, "Lend Me Your Wife," is funnier than ever. On Saturday night "The Woman Hater," which is certainly one of the very best American comedies, was given to agood audience. Next year Mr. Reed promises us anew comedy. That it will be a funny one goes without saying, for with Reed as a star everying goes these days.

Mrs. General Tom Thumb. Today at matinee, at 3 o'clock, and at night ant and Countess Magri, Baron Magri and a Ompany of specialty artists, begin a brief enpent in Atlanta. The Countess Magri was rly Mrs. General Tom Thumb. She has been antly before the public for the past thirty formerly Mrs. General Tom Thighto. She has been constantly before the public for the past thirty ran, and her popularity, with ladies and children especially, has scarcely diminished. She has appared before all the crowned heads and the nobility of Europe and the jewels presented to her by those royal personages represent a forme in themselves. It is said that the comtess at her receptions wears $50,000 with of diamonds. Count Magri, her husband, all Barod Magri, his brother, are both intelligent little gentlemen. They are actors, vocalists and swordsmen. These three distinguished midgets will appear in a sketch, written especially for them, entitled "Two Strings to Her Bow," and the pantomine, "The Two Lovers," in which the count and baron will exhibit their skill at facing. In addition to these, Helen M. Benden will give a Xylophone solo and a staff bell solo. It benden will perform on the musical glasses and violin, and Agawa's troupe of royal Japanese will exhibit their wonderful skill.

The performances will be given at popular prices—25 cents, 30 cents and 75 cents, and at the mathine 25 cents and 50 cents.

There never was such a Friday matinee as that which was to be seen at the Grand opera house resterday afternoon. The crowd, composed mostly of fadies and children, was so great and the importanties of those who could not attend, principally the school children, were so pressing that manger O'Neill, at some considerable trouble and excesse, engaged Mrs. General Tom Thumb and her company to prolong their engagement and remain in Charleston over today. The first engagement was only for Thursday and Friday, the company being booked to appear at Aiken opera house tonight. The Aiken engagement was therefore canceled, and the announcement is here made officially that the quaint little folks and their attendant sprites will give a grand matinee this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock and a final performance tonight."

suredly neither Mr. Jefferson nor Mr. Florence and yn possibility ask for a more satistation to his popularity than was after the cordiality and spontaneity of the sten they received last evening at Palmer's theater, where they appeared in "The Heir-at-Law." The audience of course, was numerous and representative of the culture and refinement of the town—and from the moment when Dr. Pangloss was ushered into the presence of Daniel Dowlas until the recitations of the epilogue the interest was sustained, and at the end of each act the principal performs were presence of Daniel Dowlas until the recitation of the epllogue the interest was sustained, and at the end of each act the principal performers were called before the curtain. The delicious humor of the old professor contrasted with the manly sim-plicity, and the homely nobility of the country lad, Zekiel Homespun, was an unfailing source of pleasure and amusement to those who were present.

pleasure and amusement to those who were present.

The more one sees Joseph Jefferson the more does one become enamored of his art. It is so true, so free from conventionality and clap-trap of any kind. He never strikes one false note to mar the harmony of his embodiments. The personality of Dr. Pangloss is one that it is extremely difficult faithfully to portray and at the same time constantly to hold the sympathy of the andience. The old pedagogue with his stilted moral nature and his incessant assumption of omniscience would soon become a tiresome personage indeed were this all that remained to reveal. To make his inner nature cogent, to elicit from his subject those qualities of patience, perseverance, pathos and gentle dignity which are latent in it, have been the purposes which Mr. Jefferson has sought to accomplish in his impersonation of Dr. Pangloss; and when it is all over the complete personality stands forth like some delicately chiselied camee, poetical in character, perfect in poise and exceptionally original in conception.

A most artistic contrast with Mr. Jefferson's fect in poise and exceptionally original in conception.

A most artistic contrast with Mr. Jefferson's impersonation is Mr. Florence in the role of Zekiel Homespun, than which he certainly has never done anything better. It is a part that might so easily be spoiled through lack of sympathy with the homely nature of the Derbyshire boy or else by overdoing it. Mr. Florence's embodiment, though, could not be improved. The humor is delicious, and the sentiment, which is always natural, is at times strangely moving and affecting. It is not often the privilege of theatergoers to see a performance at once so true to art and so symmetrical in form, and there should be few who do not avail themselves of the present opportunity to see it.

IS THE COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS' BANK'S AUTHORIZED CAPITAL.

The Committee on Subscriptions Had an Important Meeting Saturday—Expressions
From Business Men on the Plan.

At the call of President John M. Green, of the Commercial Travelers' Association, the committee on subscriptions met at his rooms in the Gate City Bank building, Saturday, to receive the report of the banking committee, appointed at the Kimball house, a few days ago.

The committee is composed of John M. Green, J. G. Oglesby, H. L. Atwater, Joel Hurt, Captain W. A. Hansell, C. D. Montgomery, Dr. J. D. Turner, This report showed a careful consideration of the work in hand and the committee accepted it unanimously.

Mr. Joel Hurt stated in placing the report before the committee that they had considered all the points in question carefully and he was satisfied beyond doubt of the concert of action among the commercial men of Atlanta and the south. It will bring to their support that element of business which would place the Commercial Travelers Savings Bank in the front ranks of the banking interest of the south and he would be glad to subscribe stock and advise his friends to do the same.

Mr. John Green said he was in with the boys in placing this bank in the field of commerce. Captain Atwater stated that he was sat-isfied that it would declare a nandsome divi-dend the first year.

SOUTHERN ACADEMY.

ADVENTIST COMMITTEE HAS MET AND DISCUSSED IT.

The Metropolitan Land Company Makes a Munificent Offer to the Committee for a Site for the College.

The Adventists' academy. For which three states and ever so many cities and towns are working.

But none of them offer superior induce ments to those put forth by Atlanta. There are about seven of those institutions in the north, and the one at Lincoln, Neb., is a splendid institution, consisting of several very large buildings, and it is well supported by the denomination

WORK IN THE SOUTH. The work in the south has grown to such proportions that the advisability of locating a ollege in this section of the union has been favorably considered by the conference.

The committee appointed to look into the matter of location has visited the city, and was most favorably impressed with it. The health, genial climate, energy and prosperity of the city fascinated them, and they have gone away very much in love with Georgia's

WHAT DUFFY & WARREN HAVE TO SAY.

We have the finest property in Fulton county for sale. Some of this property has never been offered before, and we want to say to the people, that we don't own one dollars' worth of this property. We stand between you and the seller, and it is our intention to discourage buyers from trading with real estate dealers, who have bought up the land and are now holding it for high prices. If you put your property in our hands exclusively, you have our guarantee that we will give it our personal attention. We suppose you know how some of the other fellows do. They sell their own property first, and let yours stand on the books. If you want to sell or rent your property give it to Duffy & Warren. We will have it advertised and properly taken care of.

We are now advertising in Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Chicago, Cincinnasi and St. Louis. So if you have any special bargains to offer send them to us. We intend to do a strictly local commission business, giving our patrons the benefit of all margins and profits, if you want any help to secure you a home we can let you have from $100 to $1,000 at any time. Yours respectfully.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

C. O. Lepper, Druggist, Fort Wayne, Ind., writes: "My little sister, four years of age, was so ill from bronchitis that we had almost given up hope of her recovery. Our family physician, a skilful man and of large experience, pronounced it useless to give her any more medicine, saying he had done all it was possible to do, and we must prepare for the worst. As a last resort, we determined to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and I can truly say, with most happy results. After taking a few doses she seemed to breathe easier, and, within a week, was out of danger. We continued giving the Pectoral until satisfied she was entirely well. This indisputable evidence of the great merit of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has given me unbounded confi-dence in the preparation, and I recommend it to my customers, knowing it cannot disap-
